

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

I. Extraēt of a Letter from Mr. Christopher Mason, concerning a Fire-ball seen in the Air, and a great Exploſion heard, Dec. 11. 1741.

Read at a Meeting of the Royal Society, on January 7. 1741-2.

ON the 11th Instant, at Buckſteep in Warbleton Pariſh, in the County of Suffex, about a Quarter before One o'Clock in the Afternoon, I obſerved a very dark uncommon Appearance in the North, and at the ſame time the Sun ſhone bright at my Back; when, on a ſudden, there was an Exploſion, as violent as the Report of a Mortar-piece, attended with a rumbling Echo, which run Eaſtward; and as near as I could conjecture, it came from about 40 Degrees of Elevation. Several People ſaw a Ball of Fire, which ran nearly Eaſtward, leaving a Train of Light, which continued ſome time. The Ball of Fire was ſeen, and the Report heard very loud, at Sompting, beyond Shoreham. Although I had been gazing upon the black Cloud for ſome Minutes, yet I ſaw no Fire nor Lightning. I am, &c.

Dec. 28. 1741.

Chr. Maſon.